

Dave Adams

619-319-7157

Dave Adams is an actor that hones his craft in the Los Angeles area. His most recent credits include portraying a Corrections Officer in the Adam Hicks music video called, "The Chosen One." He portrayed Robert C. Scott in "Backlog," a USC Thesis film, where he had an "under-5" speaking role as the Chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Crime, Terrorism and Homeland Security. He was also a riot police officer on "The Bench," filmed in Glendale.

Dave has been a member of audience backgrounds as well. Indeed, his very first role was that of a member of a background audience in the film "Fight Like a Mother," directed by Meagan Noel Fulps and starring Ashley Platz. Other background work has included being an audience member on Press your Luck at CBS Television City, as well as We the People with Judge Lauren Lake and Justice with Judge Mablean. He also appeared in a photo shoot for a medical advertisement.

Dave Adams is bilingual, speaking English and Spanish. In terms of roles, his specialties are those of a police officer, EMT, Security Guard and businessperson. Indeed, he has worn uniforms for many years and knows how to present a professional and realistic appearance. However, he has the flexibility to assume other roles as needed.

Dave Adams is available for roles in Los Angeles, San Diego and anywhere in between.
